Mrs. Wellington Shannon to Address Red Cross Workers Tomorrow Afternoon at 608 Chestnut Street—Engagements Announced and Rumored

HEATLESS Monday again interferes with the meeting of the Independence Square Red Cross at 608 Chestnut street, because you see the rooms are in a business building, and so the Red Cross has graciously taken a back seat in the matter, and the afternoon talk this week will be held tomorrow afternoon instead. I think it's going to be extremely interesting and a good change, in that some one from home is going to talk to the workers this time. You see for several weeks we have been hearing about things "over there" and there are many questions in our minds about what is going on "over here," and so Mrs. George Horace Lorimer, who is chairman of the Independence Square auxiliary, has asked Mrs. J. Wellington Shannon, who is vice-chairman of the clearing house for the Red Cross, to speak and tell us of what is being done here. In fact, she will tell us "the Story of the Red Cross Sweater" and will answer all kinds of questions in regard to Red Cross matters. You know there are lots of things that many of us want to know about. Not that one question, the Government or the Red Cross or anything of that kind. They are all doing their best, but we want often to know how the things are done and love to follow our own work so I am looking forward to an extremely interesting afternoon, aren't you?

IT'S too bad about the little Beggs family, isn't it? They have scarlet fever and are quarantined in their home at Ardmore. And this has changed the plans of the Earle family for the reception after Edith's wedding. You know it had been decided to have the wedding at the Church of the Redeemer in Bryn Mawr and hold the reception at the Beggs house in Ardmore. Every one wondered, naturally, why the Earles were not having the reception in their own home, as they had had for all four of their other daughters, but you see every one does not live out in Bryn Mawr back by the Radnor Hunt Club in winter, and especially such a winter as this has been.

If everybody did, then they would not ask why, but would wonder instead how the Earles themselves can get one car over the roads, let alone a number, for they the rouds are well-nigh impassable and have been ever since the snow first fell and the intense cold set in during Christmas week. The reception will therefore take place at Mrs. Victor Mather's house, Avondale Cottage, at Haverford, which is easily accessible. Mrs. Mather is the eldest sister—she was Katherine Earle, known. Edith is going to give her bridesmaids' luncheon at her own home on Wednesday of this week. But I'm afraid Mrs. Beggs will have to be counted out of the party, and I understand she was to have been one of the bridesmaids. The one good thing about it is that the cases are not terribly serious.

IT SEEKS to run to the Porter family to marry men of distinction, doesn't it? Here we of Philadelphia who used to know Margaretta and Catherine and Elizabeth all sat up and took decided notice several years ago when Margaretta's engagement was announced to the late Bishop Codman of Maine, who died so soon after their marriage, and now Elizabeth is engaged to Frederick C. Fearing of New York, who is a graduate of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale and a member of several engineering and scientific societies. A man of distinction and decided brains, The Porters, who are daughters of Colonel John Bidder Porter and Mrs. Porter, are granddaughters of the late General Andrew Parrot. Catherine is in France at present with a Red Cross canteen corps. They used to live on Clinton street here, when the girls were growing up, but now they live in Washington.

ANOTHER engagement which was announced in this city on Saturday is that of Margaret La Rue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. La Rue, to Justice Clayton Brayford. Margaret came out last year and is an awfully pretty girl. Both she and her fiance live in Germantown, but even so none of their friends seemed to have suspected a romance, and so they have the real satisfaction of having actually sprung a surprise. I understand there has been no date set as yet for the wedding.

DID you see him when he was in town last week for a few days? He used to live here, you know, and then went over to the great metropolis in search of better things in a financial way, and from all I hear he has made good. But for the best thing in his life he did not hunt in New York, cause why, well he'd been camping out Main Line way some time before he went to Gotham, and whenever he gets a chance he comes back and goes out there to see a certain little lady with big violet eyes and clouds of fluffy hair and bright cheeks. And my hat is off to him for good taste. Maybe they'll tell us all of their happiness some day, but until then we're ready to, for one, will not give them away.

CLEVER SYSTEM USED BY WORKERS

Auxiliary No. 7, Germantown, Red Cross, Has Reputation for Perfect Work

Miss Ambrose Shropshire has charge of a group of Red Cross workers belonging to Auxiliary No. 7, which has gained the reputation of sending in perfect work to Red Cross headquarters. This group does not make elaborate dressings, but concentrates all its efforts and time on the making of hospital shirts. For this reason it is possible for the members to use a wonderful system which enables them to turn out this perfect work.

There are three women to every sewing machine, and each one has a different station to do toward the making of one shirt. The first person pins the shoulders together, turns it to the next woman, who sews them on the shoulder. She then gives it to the third person, who sews it, if it is a double seam, and turns it back to the second one to sew. After this is done the first person pins on the yoke, the second one stitched it and so on, until a perfect garment is finished.

In this way no one person makes a com-
